The Library of Requirements, in partnership with Grand Union Community Energy, is offering a free 6-week initiative exploring ways of saving both financial and material resources, to benefit us as individuals and the communities we live in.

Across the weeks, we will be discussing:

- Energy - Find out how to save money on your energy bills. Share your best ways to cut your own bills while learning from others. Should your heating be on all the time or just when you need it? Do air fryers really save you money when cooking?
- Resources - How can we all buy less stuff? Whether it's recycling, regifting, repairing, or any of the other 8 Rs, come and learn what is available to make your life easier when it comes to living more sustainably (and save you money too!).
- Food - What would an extra £500 mean to you and your family? That is how much the average household in the UK wastes on food every year. The food session will share the best ways to reduce food waste while still eating delicious healthy food.
- Water - With water bills going up at a crazy rate, cutting your water usage can be a great way to put a few more pounds back in your pocket! The water session covers tips and tricks on saving water, sharing what you do that your fellow participants can learn from and vice versa
- Travel - Always wondered how to use your car less? Is it really possible to go on a lovely holiday without jumping on a plane (spoiler alert - absolutely!). Judgement free, in the travel session we chat about simple ways to save car journeys, new ways to look at holidays, and how you can make your streets safer for everyone that uses them.
- Nature - Are you seeing more red kites? Less swifts? What are the best ways to encourage nature into your garden or neighbourhood? Is there something you could do at work to support the animals that live nearby? Always a lively session looking at how to make easy changes to protect the animals that also call this area their home, and it usually sparks a community idea or two to make sure there are spaces everyone can enjoy.

Monday 2nd November - Monday 7th December 11.45 - 1pm

Participants residing in Watford, Three Rivers or Dacorum attending at least 4 sessions will receive free thermal images of their home from one of GUCE's energy champions to give them an idea of areas of their property where they may be losing heat.
